

To Whom it May Concern.

We regret to inform you that due to aggressive budget cuts in Q3/Q4, ModCorp Industries LLC has decided to refrain from sending our annual Christmas card. This is no reflection on your performance in 2018, Merely a by-product of the partners' gross overspending on premium beard oils, micro succulents, bi-monthly podcast subscriptions and hand-crafted, responsibly sourced, single-origin soy jerky. Disciplinary actions have been taken and spending privileges for some unnamed employees are revoked until further notice.

In light of this fiscal fiasco, the leadership at ModCorp have decided take our intern's advice and "go GREEN". Please visit our electronic webpage for festive greetings, including an original song written by a regionally acclaimed band and pictures of our satisfied employees. You can access the site using the QR code below (definitely not a marketing stunt) on your cellular device.

Again, we are sorry you won't be able to hang our faces on your refrigerator this year or have the satisfaction of immediately recycling our well wishes. Thank you for continuing to invest in our company through your friendship and support. Merry Christmas, Happy New Year and remember, never underestimate the power of compound interest.

Warmly,

The ModCorp Board of Directors
